

The First Doctor 1963 - 1966

The First Doctor's original companion was Susan Foreman, his "granddaughter."

The Doctor is a Time Lord

Time Lords hail from the planet Gallifrey in the Kasterborous Cluster. Also known as The Shining World of the Seven Systems, it was located at coordinates 10-0-11-0-0 by 0-2 from Galactic Center.

The Second Doctor 1966 - 1969

The Second Doctor often played a flute, saying that it helped him to think.

The Third Doctor 1970 - 1974

The Third Doctor was put on trial by the Time Lords for interfering in the Time Stream. They found him guilty, forced him to regenerate into the Third Doctor, deactivated his TARDIS and exiled him on planet Earth for some time.

The Fourth Doctor 1974 - 1981

The Fourth Doctor's trademark scarf was over 18 feet long. He often carried a bag of Jelly Babies in his coat pocket.

The Doctor has two hearts

Like all Time Lords, the Doctor has two hearts and a binary vascular system. He can go without oxygen for extended periods, has super-human stamina and can withstand certain types of radiation.

The Doctor is over 900 years old

When a Time Lord becomes aged or mortally injured, their body will regenerate into a new form. They will look completely different and may even have a new personality, but they're still the same person.

Traditionally Time Lords were limited to twelve regenerations, but the Eleventh Doctor recently stated that he could regenerate over 500 times.

The Doctor considers himself the Earth's protector

The Doctor is quite fond of humanity and frequently defends the Earth from alien threats.

The TARDIS

The TARDIS is the Doctor's time machine, space ship and home. Short for Time And Relative Dimension In Space, it can travel anywhere in time, as well as to any point in the universe.

The TARDIS is "dimensionally transcendental," meaning it's bigger on the inside than the outside. It contains a near infinite number of rooms, including a pool and library.

The TARDIS features a "chameleon circuit" which disguises its exterior to blend in with its surroundings. The Doctor's TARDIS has a faulty circuit and is permanently frozen in the shape of a 1950s British Police Call Box.

The Doctor's TARDIS is a Type 40 Model and has had almost as many different looks as he has, changing its shape, size and even color over the years.

The TARDIS was grown, not built, and seemingly has a mind of its own, often taking the Doctor to a place at a crucial point in history. It can also repair and heal itself.

The Doctor's ability to control the TARDIS varies wildly. Sometimes he can pilot it with pinpoint accuracy, while other times he misses his intended destination by centuries.

The TARDIS was designed to be piloted by six Time Lords simultaneously, which explains the Doctor's trouble with piloting it by himself. It was also revealed that the TARDIS makes its characteristic grinding sound during materialization because "he leaves the parking brake on."

The Fifth Doctor 1981 - 1984

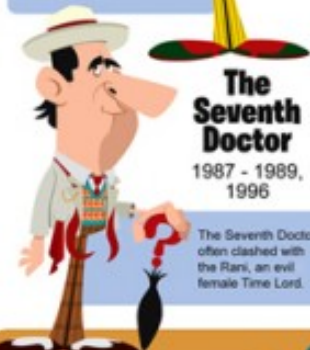

The Fifth Doctor often wore a stalk of Earth celery on his lapel, claiming it was "an excellent restorative."

He was also the first to wear reading glasses.

The Sixth Doctor 1984 - 1986

The Sixth Doctor was also put on trial by the Time Lords. The prosecutor was the Valeyard, who may be a future evil version of the Doctor.

The Seventh Doctor 1987 - 1989, 1996

The Seventh Doctor often clashed with the Rani, an evil female Time Lord.

The Doctor was a wanted man on Gallifrey

The Time Lords had a strict non-interference policy when it came to other planets, something which the Doctor strongly opposed.

He "borrowed" a TARDIS from a work shop and began travelling through time and space, saving worlds. The Time Lords branded him a renegade and a criminal for his actions.

The Eighth Doctor 1996

The Eighth Doctor claimed to be half human on his mother's side, a fact which is still in dispute.

The Ninth Doctor 2005

The Ninth Doctor sacrificed himself to save his human companion Rose Tyler, who was dying after absorbing the Heart of the TARDIS.

The Doctor has an actual name that is known only to a few close associates

He sometimes goes by the alias "John Smith."

The Tenth Doctor 2005 - 2010

The Tenth Doctor has a "daughter" cloned from his genetic matrix, and a regenerated duplicate living on an Earth in a parallel dimension.

Sonic Screwdriver

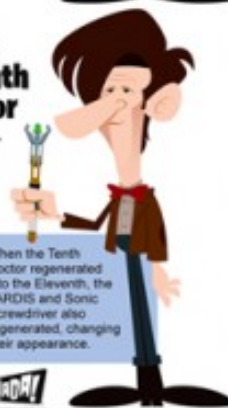

The Doctor dislikes weapons and is armed only with his wits and his Sonic Screwdriver. This incredible device can perform an amazing array of functions, from unlocking doors to gaining access to computers, and even remotely controlling the TARDIS.

The Doctor has had several different types of Sonics over the years. Recently it's been revealed that the Sonics are grown by the TARDIS itself and are an extension of it.

The Eleventh Doctor 2010 -

When the Tenth Doctor regenerated into the Eleventh, the TARDIS and Sonic Screwdriver also regenerated, changing their appearance.

The Doctor is now the Last Of The Time Lords

Gallifrey fought against the evil Dalek race in the Last Great Time War. The Doctor played a pivotal role in the War and eventually ended it by activating a doomsday weapon that destroyed both sides, leaving him the last Time Lord in the universe.

